Most counties in the State of Georgia have elected government officials known as "constitutional officers." County constitutional officers include the clerk of the superior court, judge of probate court, sheriff, and tax commissioner. County constitutional officers are elected for four-year terms and have such powers and duties as provided by general law.

Although dependent upon funding from the county governing authority, county constitutional officers have a certain degree of autonomy in carrying out their duties. You essay should answer the question: “Why is electing constitutional officers, verses appointing them, advantageous to the communities they serve?”

Award Guidelines:

All entries will be reviewed by the Constitutional Officers’ Association of Georgia, Inc. Scholarship Committee. The committee members will select the scholarship recipients based on the content of their essay. Additional consideration will be given to those who have made any contribution to their local government and/or their local law enforcement community. All essays become the property of COAG.
